Assembly Democrats
2009-11 Budget Amendment Request

Date:

Legislator: Steinbrink

Staff Contact: Geoff

Statement of Amendment Intent: Support proposed biotechnology incubator project

Agency: Commerce

Summary: Pleasant Prairie Technology Incubator Center(PPTIC), a partnership between the Village of Pleasant Prairie and the Kenosha Area Business Alliance (KABA). This is an incubator that would be organized around and with the input of UW-Parkside, the Pleasant Prairie Community Development Authority, and KABA. The Village's CDA is in the process of securing a physical site, securing broadband services and amenities for a productive environment. The area is rich in Biomedical knowledge and business applications. A start-up cost of $700,00 would provide seed money along with the Village's $700,000 contribution in developing the site for the incubator. The funds from the state would be needed in July '11.

A similar project in Colorado is credited with 30 companies created, more than 100 people employed, average annual salary of $65,000, and $45 million in equity created.

Fiscal Impact: '11 biennium

*$700k expense
for next biennium
- earmark from Development
Fund?*

Chris, just as I sent the e-mail the ADC responded by asking for a required equal match from Pleasant Prairie.
Thanks Ron

Subject: RE: Pleasant Prairie

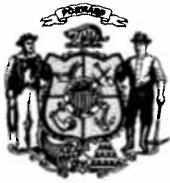

I'm not sure how to answer that, except to say that there is no expiration date for provisions contained in nonstatutory provisions. It is certainly vulnerable to the legislature changing its mind about the grant or repealing or otherwise modifying the approp in the next budget. Our drafting rules generally forbid nonstats that have effect after July 1 of the even-numbered year of the next session (i.e., July 1, 2012), but I don't think that's because there's some constitutional limit on the legislature's authority to impose narrow, temporary requirements that apply in the future.

Does that answer your question?

Chris, sorry another question. How does a nonstatutory provision in this budget bill carry over to the next biennium? Thanks ron
